

Al Averbach

Principal Research Editor

- Co-manages CPRC's publications program; develops and edits policy briefs and reports.
- Acted as senior in-house science and medical editor/writer on publications related to basic and applied research at the University of California, San Francisco, and affiliated institutes.
- Conducted extensive research on urban renewal and "Manhattanization" in San Francisco.
- Earned a BA in history from Roosevelt University in Chicago and a MA in American History from UC Berkeley.
- Awarded Hopwood Essay Prize at the University of Michigan.
- Active local poet.