

Earline Ventura:

Earline is a San Diego native as well as an alumnus from UC San Diego. After graduation she worked for UCSD in Campus Recreation. But then relocated to Long Beach and transferred to UC Irvine. She returned to UCSD in 1998. She started out as a temporary employee but after only 3 months landed a career position within the Dean's Office for the Division of Social Sciences. She left UCSD in 2004 and went to live with her family in Los Alamos, New Mexico. She was fortunate to find a position at the Los Alamos National Laboratory as a UC employee. However, in August 2005, she decided to return back home to San Diego where she was hired at UCSD in the Senior Vice Chancellor's Office of Academic Affairs where she is now.

As the Human Resources Analyst, Earline provides analytical and programmatic support for various human resources functions within the Academic Affairs vice chancellor area, including job classification, merit and incentive award programs, staff diversity efforts, professional development and employee recognition programs.

And Earline just received her 10 year pin this year.
