IMPORTANT NOTICE: If you have adjusted your status to that of a U. S. citizen or permanent resident, you may be eligible for federal financial aid and should exhaust your federal student loan eligibility before considering private education loans. To apply for federal grants, loans and work-study, submit a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). Completion of the FAFSA online at www.fafsa.ed.gov is recommended; however, you can also obtain a paper FAFSA by calling 1-800-4-FED-AID, or from the school's financial aid office. A private education loan may reduce eligibility for free or lower-cost federal, state, or school-based student financial aid. Students are not required to use any of the recommended private loan lenders listed below. Other lenders may offer different benefits that are better suited to the borrower's particular circumstances.

Cosigner Required <sup>1</sup>	International students are eligible with a U.S. citizen or permanent resident cosigner. Co-signer required for students who are not at least 18 years of age, 19 in Alabama and Nebraska, 21 in Mississippi and Puerto Rico. For students meeting these age requirements, co-signers are not required, but students who do not have an established credit history can apply with a qualified co-signer to assist with approval and potentially qualify for a lower interest rate. We recommend that students add a cosigner, which could improve their chances for approval and may reduce the interest rate for a loan.	No	No. A cosigner is not required*; however, students are encouraged to apply with a creditworthy cosigner to increase their chances of approval and maximize the opportunity for a lower interest rate.  * Students must meet the age of majority in their state of residency to apply without a cosigner.	Most undergraduate students will need to apply with a cosigner to meet our credit history, income and employment requirements. For the Wells Fargo Collegiate® Loan, the applicant must have an established, positive credit history and an acceptable debt-to-income ratio – or a cosigner who does. Permanent and temporary resident aliens must have a U.S. citizen cosigner.	No. A cosigner is not required; however, students are encouraged to apply with a creditworthy cosigner to increase their chances of approval and maximize the opportunity for a lower interest rate.  Students must meet the age of majority in their state of residency to apply without a cosigner.
If borrower applies with a cosigner, will borrower's score, cosigner's score, best between the borrower's and cosigner's score, or their combined credit score determine/influence interest rate?	A combined credit score will determine/influence the interest rate.	The borrower's and cosigner's score is equally evaluated to influence the interest rate. The Union Federal Private Student Loan utilizes a custom credit score which is not solely based on FICO.	The cosigner's credit score will determine/influence the interest rate. Is this loan available to students who are U.S. citizens or permanent residents who apply without a cosigner and do not have an established credit history?	No. As we consider a student to have an established credit history if this history includes at least 12 months of borrowing, charging and repaying, if a student does not have this history they would not be eligible without a co-signer.	No, applicants that apply on their own must meet the applicable credit criteria.	No	No	No, borrowers must have established a credit history to be eligible for the TruFit Student Loan.
Is this loan available to students who are U.S. citizens or permanent residents who apply without a cosigner and have a poor credit history that does not involve student loan defaults or bankruptcy?	Yes. However, if the credit history is extremely poor a student may not be approved. In this case we recommend that students add a cosigner, which could increase their chances for approval and may reduce the interest rate for a loan.	Applicants that apply on their own must meet the applicable credit criteria.	No, borrowers must have established a good credit history to be eligible for the TruFit Student Loan. <sup>1</sup>The University of California cannot predict the loans, interest rates, and fees for which a student may qualify as lenders have different criteria for both loan eligibility and loan rates. However, students who apply with an eligible cosigner may 1) increase their chances of being approved for the loan and 2) qualify for more attractive loan rates.

<sup>2</sup>The University of California solicited quotations on numerous private education loan products. The evaluation of the loans was based on an analysis of borrower loan costs (with a cosigner) on approved loans over a specific period of time. The borrower loan costs took into account the weighted average interest rates and loan fees as reported by the lenders. The lenders were asked to report data on all approved loans for private education loan borrowers from all higher education institutions as well as any borrower benefit discounts. It was assumed that not all borrowers would qualify for each type of discount, so a probability factor was applied for each benefit type. The lenders selected through this evaluation process are listed above, in the order in which they were ranked by the University of California. The first four columns contain variable rate loans. The fifth column was reserved for the best of the fixed rate loan products that were evaluated. The fixed rate loan option was not compared to the variable rate options in cost and should not be considered either superior or inferior to the variable rate loan products. Be aware that the basis on which the loans were selected may not be representative of the rates and fees for which most students/cosigners will qualify. However, the University of California used the best possible data available on which to rank the loans.

<sup>3</sup>All borrowers must complete a self-certification form and submit it to their lender prior to receiving a private education loan. Most lenders provide the form as part of their online loan application. If the lender does not provide the self-certification form it is available here:

<sup>4</sup>Deferring payments while in school and during the grace period will increase the overall loan costs. Unpaid interest that accrues while in school and in the grace period will be capitalized (i.e., added to the loan amount). The frequency of capitalization may vary by loan program and repayment option selected.

<sup>5</sup>This benefit typically remains available during active repayment for as long as the borrower's monthly payment is successfully deducted from the borrower's account. Also, the interest rate reduction typically does not lower the monthly payment amount but reduces the interest that accrues, thereby reducing the total amount repaid.

<sup>6</sup>Back-end benefits are not typically automatic, and require action from the borrowers. For example, in order to obtain a graduation benefit, borrowers must provide documentation of their graduation as prescribed by the lender and within the specified timeframe. Similarly, a benefit for good grades at graduation presumes that borrowers will provide transcripts, or other approved documentation, that demonstrates the required GPA was achieved. Students in programs

NOTE: Additional conditions may apply, and lenders may change loan benefits without notice. Borrowers should rely solely on the information each lender provides regarding loan terms, interest rates, and benefits and are encouraged to seek details about them. There are significant differences in lender policies.
