The Council for Aid to Education is a national nonprofit organization. Its mission is to enhance the effectiveness of corporate and other private-sector support in improving education at all levels and to help education institutions more effectively acquire private support for their programs.

CAE carries out its mission in three ways:

• It provides corporations with advice and assistance in identifying and developing effective national, regional, and local programs of education support;

• It collects, interprets, and disseminates data on educational philanthropy for the funding community, for educators and education policymakers, and for government decision makers;

• It offers analysis and commentary on key aspects of education policy and practice.

CAE activities are supported by grants and donations from corporations and private foundations and by the sale of publications and services. The Council disseminates its work widely to corporations, the education community, the media, and the general public.

CAE is an independent subsidiary of RAND, a nonprofit institution that seeks to improve public policy through research and analysis.

Joseph L. Dionne (Chairman), Chairman and CEO, McGraw-Hill Companies, Inc.
Edward F. Ahnert, President, Exxon Education Foundation
Roger Benjamin, President, Council for Aid to Education
Robert L. Bouvette, President and CEO, The Common Fund
Ronald Gidwitz, President and CEO, J. W. McConnell Foundation
Jack S. Gordon, President, Lockheed Martin Skunk Works
Bruce E. Karatz, Chairman and CEO, Kaufman & Broad Home Corporation
Thomas Kean, President, Drew University; Former Governor of New Jersey
Barry Munitz, President and CEO, The J. Paul Getty Trust
Diana Natalicio, President, University of Texas at El Paso
Michael O’Keefe, Executive Vice President, The McKnight Foundation
Michael D. Rich, Executive Vice President, RAND
Special Advisor to the Board of Overseers: